

Download of Diagnostic Software as a package

Customers of our successful Diagnostic Software Subscription access more than 30 different diagnostic programs. Previously, this meant that a considerable amount of time was spent on downloading all the individual programs from the Internet, especially when installing a new workshop computer.

Save time!

With the new multiple download function you can simply select all required programs in the table using the mouse.

Once you have completed and confirmed your selection, you will receive a personal download link via email within a few minutes. A single click starts the download of the diagnostic programs that have been compiled into a Zip container for you.

While your Internet computer downloads all the programs in a single package, you have time to do other things. Later, you transfer the package to the workshop computer using a USB flash drive or another medium to complete the installation.

The compilation of your download package and email notification may take up to 30 minutes during peak load times.

We will keep the download package with your programs ready for downloading for 24 hours.
